Aboriginal Veterans Day

The Royal Canadian Legion, Ontario Command, is proud to recognize the Service and Sacrifices of our Aboriginal Veterans.

Their Service goes back to the War of 1812, both the First and Second World Wars, Korean War, Afghanistan, and continued efforts since with the Canadian Armed Forces. This service is a very proud one.

Exact numbers who served are not known, however, estimates are that as many as 12,000 First Nations, Metis and Inuit people wore the uniform in the great conflicts of the 20th Century with at least 500 paying the Supreme Sacrifice for Crown and Country.

They also served in NATO duties in Europe during the Cold War and served other multinational peacekeeping operations under the United Nations, around the world.

We are very proud of our Aboriginal Veterans and recognize them on this special day. We sincerely thank them for their Service!
